

World Language Immersion Program Expands for 2013-2014 School Year

Seven More Elementary Schools to Offer Mandarin Chinese or Spanish Immersion Programs

Next fall, nearly 1000 kindergarteners and first graders will be enrolled in Governor Markell's World Language Expansion Initiative, as seven more schools across the state begin offering students the opportunity to participate in an elementary immersion program studying either Mandarin Chinese or Spanish. This builds off the initial launch of the program, which debuted in three elementary schools in the beginning of the 2012-2013 school year. An annual investment of $1.9 million will support program reaching nearly 10,000 students in K-8 immersion programs by 2022.

"The ability to speak another language is a life skill that is becoming crucial in the global job marketplace and to our growing state economy," Governor Markell said, noting that in Asia and Europe, children typically begin learning additional languages as early as 5 years old. "We have an incredible opportunity for Delaware youth to learn another language before they reach high school, a skill that will benefit them for the rest of their lives."

Schools participating in the first year of implementation include: McIlvaine Early Childhood Center (Caesar Rodney School District, Kent County), John. M. Clayton Elementary School (Indian River School District, Sussex County) and Lewis

Elementary School (Red Clay Consolidated School District, New Castle County). An additional seven schools will begin offering the program for the 2013-2014 school year. They are:

- Spanish Immersion Programs
  - South Dover Elementary School (Capital School District, Kent County)
  - Pulaski Elementary School (Christina School District, New Castle County)
  - Blades Elementary School (Seaford School District, Sussex County)
  - West Seaford Elementary (Seaford School District, Sussex County)
- Mandarin Chinese Immersion Programs
  - Downes Elementary School (Christina School District, New Castle County)
  - Wilbur Elementary School (Colonial School District, New Castle County)
  - New Castle Elementary School (Colonial School District, New Castle County)

In addition, students participating in the first year of implementation at McIlvaine Early Childhood Center will continue their involvement at either Allen Frear Elementary School or W.B. Simpson Elementary School, bringing the total number of participating schools to twelve.

In the program, children are taught academic content in both languages. The focus is to build proficiency – students being able to use the language – not to teach grammar. The Delaware kindergarteners entering the program will be able to continue their immersion study into middle school and achieve Advanced Placement credit in ninth grade. In high school, they will be encouraged to study an additional language as well as continue their immersion language study through dual credit offerings.

“We are absolutely delighted with the Immersion Program at John M. Clayton Elementary School,” said principal Charlynn Hopkins. “It is exciting to see students learn academic content through a second language. To highlight the success of the program, we will be hosting a Parent Night where all of our Immersion parents can observe how well their child is learning both in English and Spanish and meet their 1st grade English teacher for next year.”

Delaware’s immersion model includes 50 percent instruction in the world language and 50 percent in English. Classes have two teachers – one for each language. The program includes one-way immersion, with predominantly native English speakers, as well as two-way immersion, with two language groups such as native English and native Spanish speakers.
